The International Seminar on
Skills Development for the Emerging New Dynamism in Asian Developing Countries under Globalization

Research Outline and Objectives:

This research examines the impact on Asian late developing countries of the newly emerging dynamism in Asia, largely prompted by globalization, regional integration, and the emergence of a new pattern of international division of labor. It also analyzes implications of such widespread transformations in terms of the industrial skills needed to promote industrial development, and thereby support poverty reduction and sustainable growth in these countries. The findings of this research will be used to assist these late developing countries in developing policies for fostering industrial skills development.

This project, sponsored by the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS), entails dual phases of research and action. The first comprises international joint research on three sub themes. The second comprises contributing to human resource development in the region based on the research findings. More specifically, this project aims at achieving the following six objectives, by developing a hub of research & action, through institutionalizing an Academic Network for Development in Asia (ANDA).

- 1) International Joint Research:
Research Theme 1: The Impact of Globalization and Changing International Division of Labor on Asian Developing Countries
Research Theme 2: Changes in Socioeconomic Structures in Asian Late Developing Countries
Research Theme 3: Skills Development for Sustainable Economic Development in Asian Late Developing Countries
- 2) Building an Academic Network
- 3) Developing Research Capabilities of Junior Scholars
- 4) International Seminars and Workshops
- 5) Policy Dialogues and Recommendations
- 6) International Academic Cooperation and Assistance
